

87

IPSUM
2004

The 2004 Ipsum reminds me of some of the very good Colombards that used to emerge from California. A blend of 60% Verdejo and 40% Viura, it offers up citrusy grapefruit and anise seed-like aromas, a fresh, lively mid-palate, light body, and loads of fruit. Like its siblings, it is all tank-fermented and aged, and is best drunk in the first year following bottling.

Robert Parker (June 2005)

Robert Parker 100
The
WINE
ADVOCATE

87

IPSUM
2004

The 2004 Ipsum reminds me of some of the very good Colombards that used to emerge from California. A blend of 60% Verdejo and 40% Viura, it offers up citrusy grapefruit and anise seed-like aromas, a fresh, lively mid-palate, light body, and loads of fruit. Like its siblings, it is all tank-fermented and aged, and is best drunk in the first year following bottling.

Robert Parker (June 2005)

Robert Parker 100
The
WINE
ADVOCATE

87

IPSUM
2004

The 2004 Ipsum reminds me of some of the very good Colombards that used to emerge from California. A blend of 60% Verdejo and 40% Viura, it offers up citrusy grapefruit and anise seed-like aromas, a fresh, lively mid-palate, light body, and loads of fruit. Like its siblings, it is all tank-fermented and aged, and is best drunk in the first year following bottling.

Robert Parker (June 2005)

Robert Parker 100
The
WINE
ADVOCATE

87

IPSUM
2004

The 2004 Ipsum reminds me of some of the very good Colombards that used to emerge from California. A blend of 60% Verdejo and 40% Viura, it offers up citrusy grapefruit and anise seed-like aromas, a fresh, lively mid-palate, light body, and loads of fruit. Like its siblings, it is all tank-fermented and aged, and is best drunk in the first year following bottling.

Robert Parker (June 2005)

Robert Parker 100
The
WINE
ADVOCATE